REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER

The past year has been free from contagious diseases with the exception of several cases of diphtheria, two of which proved fatal.

There was no time while these cases were developing that the disease became an epidemic, as they were isolated, upon being reported, and measures were taken to stop the spread of the disease.

Wherever antitoxin was used in the early stage of the disease the patients made rapid recovery, and the board of health feel that it is the proper treatment when cases of diphtheria are suspected.

The expense is borne by the state, so no one is barred from the use of it.

Do not forget that spring is coming soon and that the time is near when we must clean up around our homes, and also keep them clean during the hot days of summer. Examine your vaults and keep them tightly closed, so as to prevent them from being breeding places for flies, which are great spreaders of disease.

Complaints frequently come to the health officer about unsanitary places which he must look after. When you see places around your homes that need cleaning up, go at them and do it. Do not wait to be notified by the officer.

In the month of April everybody clean up, and let us make our town a desirable place to live in.

The appropriation last year was based on the amount used the previous year, and proved to be inadequate for the past year, as the financial statement will show. Let us at least double the appropriation of last year, as there are bills that must be met.

REPORT OF CHAIRMAN OF NURSING COMMITTEE

To the selectmen and citizens of the Town of Hinsdale:

I hereby submit my report as chairman of nursing committee.

Hinsdale has now had two years of Red Cross nursing, with the exception of three months of the two years, when we were without a nurse, not being able to procure one who was suited to a small community and could do school work in connection with the home work. Mrs. Elsie Snook O'Connor was with us from February 12, 1920, to August 11, 1921. Miss M. J. Barron came to us in November, 1921. Part of the medical inspection work in the schools has been completed. Much benefit has resulted from the inspection, for a number of pupils have had glasses fitted and dental work done which would otherwise have been neglected.

During the diphtheria scare the nurse watched the throats of the children carefully, and in case of the least sign of sore throat the child was asked to stay away from school and playmates until they were sure of its nature.

Miss Barron has talked with the local dentist in favor of a dental clinic. There has been nothing definite decided as yet.

In July seven adenoid and tonsil cases were taken to Melrose Hospital. Through the nurse's effort and in behalf of the Red Cross, the expense of the operation was reduced one-half. Transportation was given free. Six hundred and forty-four bedside visits, one hundred and nine infant welfare, eighty-two school visits and twelve accident cases have been attended to this year.

Respectfully submitted,

EVA N. FAY,

Chairman of the Nursing Committee.

February 9, 1922.

LIBRARY REPORT

The following report of the Hinsdale Public Library and Reading Room for the year ending February 1, 1922, is hereby submitted.

Total circulation for the year,	16,260
Adult fiction,	8,968
Adult non-fiction,	1,073
Juvenile fiction,	3,621
Juvenile non-fiction,	903
Magazines,	1,695
Largest monthly circulation, January,	1,559
Smallest monthly circulation, June,	1,088
Largest daily circulation, December 3,	149
Average daily circulation,	53
Per cent of fiction,	77
Volumes added by purchase,	229
Fiction,	175
Non-fiction,	54
Books presented,	38
Reading room attendance,	6,274
Largest daily,	40
Average,	20

The records show an increase of more than twenty books over the number purchased last year, and were it not for the continued high price of books even more could have been added.

The record of circulation for 1921 exceeds that of 1920 by 939, and the attendance in the reading room indicates an increase of 248.

The circulation of adult non-fiction exceeds that of the previous year by 285, and the juvenile non-fiction shows a gain of 200.

This encouraging increase in the use of educational books is due largely to two causes.

During the summer a course of vacation reading was conducted for the boys and girls, which led to the use of many of this class of juvenile books. Twenty pupils completed this course and received certificates for their reading. Several public-spirited citizens assisted the trustees and librarian in giving a most delightful picnic for these young people, thus lending encouragement to the work.

The reading circle for adults, which is in operation at the present time, is not only emphasizing the value of worthwhile books, but is proving to be a source of real enjoyment and satisfaction to more than thirty men and women.

The circle is open to all adults who will read one book of non-fiction each month. At the monthly meetings, held at the library, a pleasant hour is spent with reviews and general discussion of the books read.

Good Book Week was observed by a library exhibit of books and posters placed in the store window of C. A. Holland and Son. This gave the passer-by an opportunity to see some of the good books that are being added to the library and afforded a suggestion of best books for the home.

Of the books purchased during the year, six are in the Polish language and more will be appreciated if sufficient funds warrant their purchase.

Of the books presented, most of them are non-fiction and several were given by the Public Library of Brattleboro.

The library has taken advantage of the plan of inter-library loans and has borrowed books from the N. H. State Library and from the public libraries of Keene, N. H., and Brattleboro, Vt.

Forty-seven books have been rebound at the National Library Bindery in Springfield, Mass., and many more have been repaired in the library. It is very desirable that better care be given the books in the homes, in order that they may not come back to the library so badly soiled and worn.

During the year the floor of the library has received two coats of dressing at an expense of $30.96.

By the will of Harrison M. Boeker of California, the library receives a bequest of $500.00, the income of which is to be used for its maintenance.

M. E. FISHER,
L. J. DAVIS,
FREDERICK S. LEONARD,
Library Committee.
ELLEN L. BROWN,
Librarian.

The petty cash in the hands of the librarian is as follows:

I have examined the accounts of the chairman of the Board of Education, and find vouchers for the expenditure of $39,356.77, leaving a balance on hand of $342.42.

Audited, July 9, 1921.

JOHN E. SCOTT,
Town Auditor.

The paid out figures of $39,356.77 include $12,000.00 of refunded notes, which were refunded to enable us to make one payment each year on outstanding notes.

The annex and toilet bills paid during the year were $6,816.62.

Deducting these two sets of figures we obtain the actual cost of $20,540.15 for the school year ending June 30, 1921.

The Board of Education found it necessary after opening school in September, 1921, owing to the continued large classes in grades 5 and 6 to partition the room and employ another teacher. This made an extra expense of $900.00 for a teacher ; also $100.00 for labor and lumber. You will notice in the estimated expenses that we included this $1,000.00 to complete this year ending June 30, 1922.

Respectfully submitted,

JESSE W. FIELD,

Chairman.

HEADMASTER'S REPORT

To the Superintendent and Board of Education of Hinsdale, N. H.:

Another year of school work and attainment has moved on and has produced results of which there is no reason to be ashamed. Our teachers have remained together with the exception of Miss Colby, of the department of Domestic Arts. Miss Colby had conducted the work in her department so admirably that it seemed impossible that a new teacher, just from normal school, could really fill her place. However, the work of her successor in that department, Miss Dora Sprague, has proved so successful as to leave no room for doubt as to her ability to fill the position. Miss Yerrinton and Miss Keany are also continuing the good work that they have ever done in their departments. The teachers, therefore, for the present school year are as follows:

H. H. Rice, A.B., Boston University; A.M., Eastern College, Virginia.

Miss Margaret Yerrinton, A.B., Tufts College.

Miss Josephine Keany, A.B., Boston University.

Miss Dora Sprague, graduate of Framingham Normal School.

Earl A. Braman, graduate of Troy Conference Academy, Rochester School of Music, and Leach School of Music, New York.

The ideal set, and approximately attained, in our high school, is that there shall be no lack of effort or time spent in seeing that the pupils do the required work with as few failures as possible.

The social activities of the school have been maintained.

The first six weeks of the present school year showed some social affair or entertainment practically every week. The Hallowe'en party of the Juniors came shortly after. Since then the school activities of this sort have been largely under the auspices of the Seniors. The Class of 1922 is confidently expecting to follow the example of the Class of 1921, and take a trip to Washington in the spring.

The Class of 1921, by its untiring exertions, aided greatly by the kindness of many good people of Hinsdale, raised the necessary funds and made the much-appreciated trip to Washington. Whatever may be said in opposition by critics high or low, I firmly believe that such a trip is highly educational, impressive and inspirational, as well as enjoyable. This Class also gave its dramatic entertainment very successfully, both in Hinsdale and West Chesterfield.

Nearly all of the graduates of 1921 have attended other educational institutions this year. Hinsdale High School was placed on the approved list last school year by Dartmouth College. Harold White entered Dartmouth College by certificate the present school year and we doubt not that he will succeed in his work there. Hubert Mann is attending the Keene Business College. Misses Bernice and Bertha Fuller have entered Boston University by certificate and are doing well. Miss Lorena Browning, Miss Marie Mannis, Miss Alta Snow, and Miss Ellen Watson are pursuing courses at Keene Normal School. Miss M. Antoinette Levasseur attended the summer session at Keene Normal School and is now teaching in Unity, N. H.

The present Senior class will doubtless show fully as high a percentage of those attending higher educational institutions.

The High School has had a higher enrollment of pupils this school year than in any of the past few years. The school is up to the requirements of the state, has no trouble in getting its curriculum approved by the State Commissioner, and its approved graduates may now be admitted to practically all New England colleges without examination.

As to recommendations I can only say much as was said last year. The things needed as to athletics and gymnasium work cannot be had for reasons of location and space. I would urge that parents and others do all in their power to help pupils to attend regularly all sessions and to be punctual every day.

Again I wish to commend heartily the helpful work of superintendent, Board of Education and citizens of Hinsdale who have ever been ready to help us in all possible ways. No conditions could be better for inciting all concerned to do their best.

Respectfully submitted,

H. HERBERT RICE,

Headmaster.

TO THE SCHOOL BOARD AND CITIZENS OF HINSDALE, N. H.

I hereby respectfully submit my first annual report as Superintendent of Schools.

My first care on taking charge of the Hinsdale schools in September was to ascertain as accurately as possible how the schools ranked in actual accomplishment of the work that schools are supposed to do; in other words, to find out how the schools of this district compared, grade for grade, with schools in general throughout the country.

Up to within a few years practically all school systems have been run in a more or less haphazard fashion, with no means of knowing definitely whether or not they were really accomplishing what they should in the way of pupil instruction. It has been customary to build schoolhouses, equip them with furniture, books, and other supplies, hire teachers more or less properly qualified to teach, run the schools so many months per year, and then take for granted that the schools were functioning properly in the way of teaching the children the things they ought to know and developing in them the mental attitudes and habits of action requisite to social efficiency and good citizenship.

All too often this confidence has been misplaced. But until recently there seemed to be no way of checking up the work of the schools very accurately; no way of measuring the output of the schools as we can measure the output of a factory. Neither was there any way of comparing directly the work done in one school system with that done in other school systems. This was due primarily to varying standards of grading among teachers and superintendents. Each teacher and each superintendent had his individual ideas on the subject and the standards of their particular teachers or supervisors were the ones which the schools of any particular locality were expected to achieve. Hence it came about that the schools in neighboring communities, and even within the same community, would vary greatly in efficiency due to lack of standardization of subject matter and grades. An eighth grade in one school might not be so far advanced in their studies as the sixth grade in another school simply because there were no definite standards of accomplishment for any grade other than those of individual teachers and superintendents.

As a consequence, a community might easily become misled into the belief that it had excellent schools when in reality its schools were much below par as compared with those in other towns. Only when parents moved to other places and their children had to be put back a grade or two did they awake to the realization that there is a vast difference in the efficiency of schools in different communities even when one community spends as much or more on its schools as the others. Sometimes the town that is spending the most money on its schools is getting the least in the way of educational results.

But conditions have changed greatly in this respect during the past few years. It is no longer necessary to guess at what the schools are accomplishing, or how they compare with schools in other parts of the state or country. There is no longer any reason why any community cannot know just how its schools rank in comparison with schools in general in this country. We now have instruments with which we can measure the accomplishment of pupils from year to year, not in accordance with the judgment of particular teachers or superintendents, but in accordance with what the pupils in thousands of other schools have done. We can tell which schools are doing more and better work per year just as we can tell which of several factories are turning out the most pairs of high-grade shoes or the most yards of fine cloth in a given time. Furthermore, we have definite standards of achievement for each grade in each school subject and can measure with a fair degree of accuracy just how far any class or any individual pupil is behind or ahead of the grade standards. The efficiency of the teacher can be measured by the amount and quality of work she accomplishes, as indicated by the progress of her pupils, just as the efficiency of the woodchopper can be estimated by the number of cords of wood he can cut in a given time.

The instruments by means of which all these desirable things can be accomplished are standardized tests in the various school subjects. We know what hundreds of thousands of other children in many different schools have done with these same tests and we simply compare the work of the children in our schools with that of these other children. These instruments for the comparative measurement of classroom products are not yet perfected but, even so, they are by far the fairest and most accurate means yet found with which to measure learning and the efficiency of instruction. Early in the fall a survey of the schools of this district was made by means of standardized tests in order to ascertain the conditions existing at the beginning of the school year. In the first three grades the work was found to be up to standard. The other grades averaged more than a year below standards. A peculiar situation existed in regard to the two upper grades, namely, that the seventh grade was considerably more advanced in their studies than was the eighth grade, whereas, under normal conditions, the eighth grade should have been about a year ahead of the seventh. Neither of the two upper grades was as far advanced as a standard sixth grade ought to be.

Some of the more important reasons for these conditions were as follows :

1. Lack of realization that such conditions existed.
2. Lack of books and other teaching equipment.
3. A short school day.

No one realized that such conditions existed because the work of the Hinsdale schools had never been compared accurately with that of other school systems. With good buildings, good teachers, and all the money that was asked for being spent on the schools, it was simply taken for granted that they were doing at least standard work. Nothing but the use of standardized tests could possibly reveal the actual state of affairs. Now that we know the exact nature and extent of the schools' deficiencies it is only a matter of time and proper equipment to bring them up to standard.

In the past the school day has been only $5\frac{1}{4}$ hours when it should have been six hours. The State Program of Studies calls for six hours. Most places have six hours. Hence Hinsdale has been having only about eight months of school as compared with nine months in most places. Few people stop to realize that three-fourths of an hour off of every school day results in the loss of more than a month of school time in the course of a year. This means more than a month of school time thrown away at no saving in dollars and cents to the district, and at a distinct loss to the children. It also means that about one-ninth of the school expenditures for any one year has been spent without any return. One-ninth of last year's expenditures amounts to about \$2,600. Lengthening the school day to six hours would not save this amount in money for the district but would give the children of the district \$2,800 worth of instruction that they have been losing previous to this year.

The school day was lengthened by a half-hour early this year so that now it is only fifteen minutes short of the standard length. This additional month of instruction, secured without extra expense, merely by lengthening the school day to normal, ought to help greatly in bringing the schools up to standard. It is obvious that the loss of a whole month each year because of a short school day from the time a child enters school, would, by the time he reached the eighth grade, account pretty largely for the eighth grade being a year behind the eighth grades in other places. Why shouldn't it be? The children have had nearly a year less schooling.

There was a great lack of textbooks in all the schools. Very few classes had more than half enough books to go around. There were not even enough arithmetics, grammars, and geographies, and there were practically no spelling books at all. Neither were there any reading books for grades above the third, and not nearly enough for the lower grades. Histories were either entirely lacking or sadly out of date. This was also true of civics and physiology texts. Because of the lack of necessary books the pupils were greatly handicapped in trying to study, and teachers had to spend much valuable time in putting lessons on the blackboard instead of in helping and instructing the children.

The lack of needed textbooks has been largely remedied. The conditions necessitated a much larger expenditure for textbooks than the district is accustomed to laying out in any one year. In considering this fact it should be remembered: (1) that the need for such expenditure was brought about by failure to spend reasonably large amounts for textbooks in years past; (2) that the books were absolutely necessary if the schools were to accomplish results consistent with the money already being spent on them; (3) that, when the schools are once equipped with necessary textbooks, it will be five or six years at least before further extensive purchases need be made. Not only do books wear out, but in this age of rapid progress, they get out of date and should be replaced every five or six years in any school system that pretends to be progressive, and to give the children the best educational advantages it can afford. In this connection, however, I may state that the purchases made this year were not to replace old books that might have been made to serve a while longer. Except in the case of some old histories and civics, they were for books that were needed and were entirely lacking. The needs of the school in this respect are not yet fully supplied. It would take four or five hundred dollars more to properly equip them with needed texts.

So far I have discussed the school conditions revealed as a result of the survey made in September, the causes of these conditions, and some of the measures taken to remedy them. It is too early in the year to do more than prophesy in regard to results. The midyear tests have just been completed and the pupils' scores tabulated. The graph cards show on the average much more than normal progress in most subjects for the first half-year. If anywhere near equal progress is made for the last half of the year, not only will a normal year's work be accomplished, but a large percentage of the arrears will be made up. Present indications are that the great majority of children in all schools will be found nearly or quite up to standards by the end of the school year. The results so far are even better than I had hoped for.

It is my plan to give the tests in all schools three times a year. The September tests are to find out how the schools stand at the beginning of the year. The midyear tests are to find out how the children are progressing in their work, and where there is failure to make proper progress. In June the tests are given again for promotion purposes. In this way we can keep track of how the children are progressing in their studies as compared with other school systems, and see wherein and to what extent the schools are succeeding or failing in their purpose.

Permanent records are kept of the progress of every pupil by means of recording the results of the tests on graph cards, one of which for each child in the district is kept on file in the superintendent's office. These cards show at a glance each child's standing in his or her studies at the beginning, at the middle, and at the end of the school year. Each teacher has copies of these cards for the pupils of her particular school.

The purpose of the whole scheme is to eliminate haphazard guesswork in the conduct of the community's most important and most expensive business, and to substitute therefor scientific accuracy in measuring the efficiency of that business so that everybody concerned may know just how the schools stand in point of efficiency at any time: that is, how they stand in regard to value received by the district for every dollar expended, in comparison with the schools of other communities.

The excellent results so far accomplished are mostly due to Hinsdale's loyal and efficient staff of teachers. It is only with their help that superior results have been and can be accomplished, for, after all, the teacher makes the school. The district can furnish the buildings and equipment, and the superintendent can plan and guide and help, yet, if the teacher falls down on her end of the job, failure is bound to result.

The superintendent has asked much of the teachers during the past few months. He has asked for special effort, for extra work, and for intelligent co-operation in much that was new to them in the way of plans and methods. In almost every case the things he has asked for have been given cheerfully and effectively.

In conclusion, I want to express my thanks and appreciation to the members of the school board for their interest in my work and their help in meeting the difficulties of the situation as I found it. I request their continued co-operation and that of all the citizens of Hinsdale, in my plans to make the schools of this district the very best that can be had for the money.

Respectfully submitted,

SAMUEL S. BROOKS,

Superintendent of Schools.
